

Message from King's University College

We know that many of you are struggling with the reports of sexual and gender-based violence over the weekend of September 10 to 12, as well as the death of a first-year student.

We will not tolerate violence on campus.

The University is committed to being responsive to any incidents of sexual violence and being proactive in our sexual violence and prevention programming. King's sexual violence policy is online here.

Together, we must work to restore your faith in the safety of campus. We are in this together.
